First lady champions grocer's plans to cut food's sodium, prices

Washington

Wal-Mart, the nation's largest grocer, says it will reformulate thousands of products to make them healthier and push its suppliers to do the same, joining first lady Michelle Obama's effort to combat childhood obesity.

The first lady accompanied Wal-Mart executives Thursday as they announced the effort in Washington. The company plans to reduce sodium and added sugars in some items, build stores in poor areas that don't already have grocery stores, reduce prices on produce and develop a logo for healthier items.

"No family should have to choose between food that is healthier for them and food they can afford," said Bill Simon, president and CEO of Wal-Mart's U.S. division.

Chinese leader offers proposals to further improve relationship

Washington

Chinese President Hu Jintao called Thursday for deeper engagement with the United States on a broad range of issues, warning that only by working together in some areas and respecting national differences in others will the two nations avoid friction in the years ahead.

"It is fair to say our two countries have never enjoyed such broad common interests and shouldered such important common responsibilities as we do today," Hu said to hundreds of industry leaders, lobbyists and diplomats.

His luncheon talk followed closed-door sessions with members of Congress, where he drew criticism for his country's human rights and other policies a day after President Obama had expressed

Hu echoed his Wednesday admission that China has work to do in making room for greater civil liberties in its development model, which administration officials have praised for lifting hundreds of millions of Chinese out of poverty over the past decade.

"We still have a long way to go before we achieve our national development goals," Hu said.

Hu also assured Americans that China would not engage in an arms race with the United States, pose a military threat to any country or pursue expansionism.

Hu said China intended to "develop a socialist democracy."

The 68-year-old leader listed several proposals for broadening U.S.-China relations, including the exchanges of students, scientists and cultural leaders that Obama has also sought to expand.

He said the exchanges were particularly important to promote better understanding among young Americans and Chinese. (AP/THE WASHINGTON POST)

Berlusconi Tapes Captivate Italy

Transcripts showcase details of premier's alleged sexual parties

Rome

For gossip-loving Italians, it's a feast. To others, it may be more than they ever wanted to know about their premier, Silvio Berlusconi, his purported sexual appetites and parties with topless girls — or, in one case, with a woman told to dress in a sexy nurse's uniform.

Italian newspapers are filled with embarrassing leaks of wiretaps ordered by Milan prosecutors as part of their prostitution probe targeting the 74-year-old Italian leader and his alleged encounters with a Moroccan teenager, known as Ruby.

The premier has denied wrongdoing and denounced the violation of his privacy. Still, transcripts of the purported conversations involving Ruby, women who attended parties in Berlusconi's villa near Milan and some of the premier's aides and friends offer a glimpse into an indulgent lifestyle that critics say is inappropriate for a public official.

Prosecutors have placed Ber-lusconi and three associates under investigation, on suspicion that the premier between February and May paid for sex with the Moroccan girl, then a minor, and used his office to cover it up. Prosecutors have said in a document that "a significant number of young women ... have prostituted themselves with Silvio Berlusconi."

Car Bombs Kill 51 in Attack on Iraqi Pilgrims

Suicide blasts wound at least 180 in third straight day of strikes

Baghdad

Three suicide car bombers struck Shiite pilgrims south of Baghdad on Thursday, killing at least 51 people and wounding more than 180 in a third straight day of attacks across Iraq.

The string of assaults, reminiscent of the bloodiest days of the Iraq war, shattered a two-month lull and presented a major challenge to the new government of Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, who must soon decide whether to ask U.S. forces to stay after the end of the year.

Thursday's attacks were particularly significant because most of the victims were Shiite civilians, the government's core constituency. A lawmaker allied with anti-American cleric Muqtada al-

Sadr, whose support for al-Maliki was crucial in enabling him to remain prime minister, accused government security forces of "not acting in a professional manner" to protect the pilgrims.

"I expect the attacks will continue ... due to the negligence of the security forces," said lawmaker Hakim al-Zamili.

The dead included a dozen Iraqi soldiers and policemen, and an undisclosed number of women and children, officials said.

No group claimed responsibility, but suicide attacks are the trademark of the Islamic State of Iraq, an al-Qaeda front group believed to be made up mostly of Sunni religious extremists. (AP)

FBI Busts In on Mob

Record sweep along the East Coast nets 127 suspected mafia members

New York

Federal and state agents began arresting nearly 130 reputed mafia members from seven East Coast organized crime families Thursday, the largest coordinated arrest in the FBI's quarter-century crackdown on La Cosa Nostra, the Justice Department said.

More than 800 law enforcement officers participated in the predawn raids in New York City, New Jersey and New England, arresting more than 110 people charged with crimes including murder, loan-sharking, extortion and labor racketeering. A total of 127 people have been charged, including alleged high-ranking members from some of the five New York City-based families, officials said.

Federal officials said the scope and severity of the charges — which covered several alleged mob hits from the 1980s and 1990s and a 2002 murder in Queens, N.Y. — showed that the mafia, also called La Cosa Nostra, is to some extent unbowed by a continuing law enforcement crackdown.

"The notion that today's mob families are more genteel and less violent than in the past is put to lie by the charges contained in the indictments unsealed today," said Janice Fedarcy, assistant director

How They Got 'Em

The FBI has gained a recent advantage by cultivating a crop of mob figures willing to wear wires and testify against gangsters in exchange for leniency in their own cases. In the latest cases, authorities say turncoats recorded thousands of conversations of suspected mobsters. Investigators also tapped their phones. "The vow of silence that is part of the oath of omerta is more myth than reality today," said Janice Fedarcy, head of the FBI's New York office. (AP) in charge of the FBI's New York field office. "Even more of a myth is the notion that the mob is a thing of the past, that La Cosa Nostra is a shadow of its former self."

But experts on the mafia said the FBI's own success has severely weakened the traditional organized crime families, whose members have been paraded off to prison in large numbers since the mid-1980s. Thursday's raids were the latest in a series of mass arrests, a tactic that has become increasingly popular in recent years.

"A lot of these people have already been out of business for

A suspected mob member is held handcuffed in Brooklyn, N.Y., on Thursday. The FBI targeted seven mafia families in its sweep.

Big-Name Busts

Among those arrested Thursday were union officials, two former police officers and a suspect in Italy. High-ranking members of the Gambino and Colombo crime families, and the reputed former boss of organized crime in New England also were named in 16 federal indictments unsealed Thursday. (AP)

Luigi Manocchio, 83, the reputed former head of New England's Patriarca crime family, was arrested in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. He has long denied having mob ties. An indictment accuses him of collecting protection payments from strip-club owners.

A reputed Gambino boss, Bartolomeo Vernace, was charged in a double murder in the Shamrock Bar in Queens in a dispute over a spilled drink.

Another indictment charges an alleged Colombo captain, Anthony Russo, in the 1993 killing on an underboss during the family's bloody civil war.

Thomas lafrate, who worked as a book-keeper for strip clubs and set aside money for Manocchio, prosecutors said. He pleaded not guilty Thursday.

a very, very long time," said Jay Albanese, a Virginia Commonwealth University professor who studies organized crime. He said roughly 7,000 to 8,000 organized crime figures have been convicted nationwide since the first major racketeering indictments against the mob in the mid-1980s.

In sheer numbers, Thursday's takedown eclipsed those from a highly publicized assault on the Gambino crime family in 2008, when authorities rounded up 62 suspects. All but one of the arrests resulted in guilty pleas.

Albanese said federal authorities like to announce numerous charges on the same day partly because "it's a much bigger news event." Attorney General Eric H. Holder Jr. traveled to New York to announce Thursday's arrests at a Brooklyn news conference.

"Members and associates of La Cosa Nostra are among the most dangerous criminals in our country," Holder said at the press event. "The very oath of allegiance sworn by these mafia members during their initiation ceremony binds them to a life of crime."

A Sickening Sight

Yes, being around sniffing riders does up your odds of catching a cold

You can never predict what a January Metro ride will bring — except for the presence of at least one fellow traveler hacking into a wad of damp tissues that's also being used to mop up the pools of mucus that keep forming under his or her nose. If you worry that being in close quarters with such a sniffer could pose a threat to your health, well, you're right.

A new study conducted at the University of Nottingham found that people who'd hopped on a bus or trolley in the previous five days were six times more likely to show up at a doctor's office with an acute respiratory infection. Occasional riders seemed to have a higher risk than regular commuters, perhaps because they hadn't experienced the repeated exposure that can provide some immunity. Although researchers cautioned that this was a small, exploratory study, and no one completely understands how public transit ridership contributes to the spread of illness, it's a reminder to all straphangers to practice healthy hygiene.

That, of course, starts with getting the flu vaccine, says Carolyn Bridges, an epidemiologist who's the associate director for science in the CDC's influenza division. It's not too late, and needle-phobes can always opt for the nasal spray. It's also a one-shot deal, unlike the other steps she suggests, which require being constantly conscientious. Those include not touching your face, washing your hands frequently (or at least using an alcohol-based sanitizer) and avoiding face-to-face contact with coughers and sneezers. "Certainly, if you see someone who's ill, move away," she cautions.

The other tricks some folks have developed to ward away germs aren't as foolproof as they would probably like to believe. Leaving your gloves on for the ride will keep the droplets of doom away from your hands, but not necessarily your eyes, mouth and nose if you unconsciously touch your face.

And subway surfing — attempting to go for a ride without making contact with anything but your feet — is dangerous for other reasons. "For safety purposes, I recommend you hold on," says Larissa May, an assistant professor of emergency medicine at GW, who adds that although passengers don't have control over how often Metro wipes down the inside of train cars, you can scrub other surfaces that might have picked up some ick, including your cell phone.

But if you take all of these precautions and still end up with a sore throat and leaky nose, the only advice you need to heed is this: Stay home. VICKY HALLETT (EXPRESS)

Detained Va. Teen To Return to U.S.

Alexandria

A Virginia teenager who was placed on the no-fly list and barred from returning home to the United States from Kuwait is expected to arrive at Washington Dulles International Airport Friday morning, a government lawyer said.

Gulet Mohamed, a 19-year-old U.S. citizen from Alexandria, was detained in Kuwait last month at the behest of the United States, according to his attorneys. They allege that Mohamed was beaten by Kuwait officials who questioned him about his travels in Yemen and Somalia after he left the United States in March 2009.

Mohamed's family said he went overseas to study Arabic and Islam, stayed only a few weeks in Yemen, and then lived with relatives in both Somalia and Kuwait. They said he has no connections with extremists. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

SUNTRUST BANK MAY HAVE VIOLATED YOUR RIGHTS AS A HOMEBUYER

Levetown & Jenkins, LLP, is currently investigating claims that SunTrust Bank may have violated certain state and federal laws with respect to certain of its lending practices. Our inquiry does not extend to FHA or other government loans. If you obtained a home loan in Washington, D.C. through SunTrust between 2000 and 2008 and were required to purchase private mortgage insurance, your rights may have been violated.

For more information, please contact
Thea Bournazian at 202.379.4899 or

The NFL's Six-Shooters

Playoffs' lowest seeds are just a win away from the Super Bowl

Pro Football

The NFL can't be upset with so many upsets in the playoffs.

What better evidence is needed that the "anybody can win at any time" mantra is accurate when two No. 6 seeds are in the conference championship games? And nobody would be shocked to see both the Green Bay Packers and New York Jets in the Super Bowl.

Indeed, the wild-card Packers are favored to win Sunday's NFC title game at Soldier Field, home of the champions of their division, the Chicago Bears.

'We Don't Like Each Other'

The Bears beat the Packers 20-17 in Week 3, a horrendous performance in which Green Bay set a team record with 18 penalties — and barely lost. The Packers won 10-3 at Lambeau Field in the season finale to clinch their wild-card spot.

So, don't expect the Bears (12-5) to treat the Packers (12-6) like some rank outsider standing in their way. Not with all that history accompanying the longest rivalry in pro football. Not with the way Green Bay's defense has stymied two of the league's best offenses the last two weeks, or the way quarterback Aaron Rodgers is playing.

Bears coach Lovie Smith expects the usual animosity between the

The Jets and Packers have found plenty of reasons to celebrate in this postseason, despite neither playing a home game.

Backstory

Long shots' going far in the playoffs, even winning Super Bowls, is not unheard of. Consider that since the league went to six playoff teams in 1990 — there were three divisions and three wild cards until 2002 — wild cards have made the title game 14 times. Counting the Packers and Jets, eight of those have occurred since 2005. Two of those wild cards, the 2005 Steelers and 2007 Giants, won the whole thing. In '05, '08 and this year, a wild card got to the conference title game. No Super Bowl has featured a pair of non-division winners — a fact Green Bay and New York wouldn't mind changing. (AP) teams, which will face off for the 182nd time. "You just look at our history and it does have a respectful tone, but it can be nasty also," Smith said. "It's going to be a physical game. We don't like each other."

Road Warriors

Hours later at Pittsburgh (13-4), the Jets also could add to the Super Bowl wild-card total against the only previous sixth seed to make a Super Bowl, the Steelers.

The Jets (13-5) were the fifth seed a year ago and got this far. Indeed, until last year, when the top-seeded Saints and Colts each made the Super Bowl, the No. 1 teams from both conferences hadn't gotten there since the 1993 season.

So road wins aren't that unusual, and the Jets are the best example: They are 4-1 in the playoffs under coach Rex Ryan, all of those games away from the Meadowlands. "We know what it was like to play in a tough environment," quarterback Mark Sanchez said. "We know how to play on the road; I think we're better on the road, so that's a huge help for us." BARRY WILNER (AP)

Standing Room Only: Super Bowl attendance could surpass 100,000 for the first time in 24 years when $1.3 billion Cowboys Stadium debuts as host on Feb. 6. Not all of those fans will have seats or even be able to see the game in front of them. Still, the NFL says it will count "several thousand" Cowboys season ticket holders who pay $200 each to watch on TV from an outdoor plaza on the east end of the stadium in suburban Arlington, Texas. ### 0 — What a Feeling For the Wizards

Just when you think it can't get any worse for Washington sports, here come the Wizards.

The same Wizards who've tried everything, including changing their name in 1997, to turn their fortune around. The same Wizards who saw fit to make Kwame Brown the No. 1 pick in the draft a decade ago. And, yes, the same Wizards who gave Gilbert

Arenas a $111 million contract after he blew out his knee three years ago.

So, how does a team with this history of failure outdo itself? Simple: by going 0-20 on the road to start this season. Only five other teams in NBA history have accomplished this feat.

But at least "it's getting frustrating."

Maybe an exorcism is needed. Or maybe hypnotism. How about another name change?

as Andray Blatche told The Washington Post after a 100-87 loss in Milwaukee Wednesday night. How could it be "getting frustrating"? It seems like that would have been the case at 0-5. This is an embarrassment, even for this sorry franchise.

Coach Flip Saunders is right to say the problem is mental. Just this week, John Wall and Nick Young found a way to produce announcer Steve Buckhantz's famed "dagger" call in a win (at home, of course) against Utah.

Maybe an exorcism is needed. Or maybe hypnotism. How about another name change? (This may actually happen.) Either way, something needs to be done, even if this losing will help the team's draft status.

It's hard being this bad — but it's even harder to end this team's curse.

The Wizards

This was not supposed to be his year.

The Wizards entered the season with plenty of starting guards — both of the big-name and role-playing variety — and Nick Young wasn't one of them.

But this season has turned into Young's best chance yet to fulfill his potential.

'HIS MATURATION PROCESS'

Picked 16th overall in the 2007 NBA draft out of USC, Young was seen as a complementary scorer to eventually pair with then-superstar point guard Gilbert Arenas. But the Wizards always had a group of players whose talents demanded more shots.

The December trade of Gilbert Arenas to Orlando changed all of that. Young went from long-term shooting-guard-in-waiting to starter and a relied-upon scorer overnight. And the fourth-year player has delivered of late.

"This is his maturation process," Wizards coach Flip Saunders said. "Now teams are coming out and saying, 'We are going to stop Nick Young.'"

"It's been a two-year process with him, and he had some struggles before, but he kept on working and had a great summer. He made a conscious effort to hit the weights and get stronger."

CAN'T-MISS KID

Young has put up at least 21 points in six of his last nine games, including a career-best 43 in a home victory against Sacramento on Jan. 11.

"I just felt like I couldn't miss," Young said of the performance.

7 P.M.
Fri. | CSN

With Arenas gone, and Antawn Jamison and Caron Butler dealt away last season, the Wizards were left with a void in the go-to scorer department for the first time in nearly a decade.

The addition of Rashard Lewis in the Arenas trade gave Washington a quality spot-up shooter for rookie point guard John Wall to find, but not necessarily a player like Young, who can set up for a catch-and-shoot opportunity one possession and then relieve the pressure by creating his own shot the next time down the floor.

That versatility has made him a mainstay in Saunders' new rotation. Young, who started the season with a string of single-digit scoring performances off the bench, has now played at least 30 minutes in 18 of Washington's last 20 games.

"I always look for him at every game," Wall said. "He does a great job of boosting our energy when he gets going." ERIC BRANDNER

Wall Asks to Be Fined

Recently, while John Wall was going over game film, Wizards assistant Ryan Saunders pointed out that the No. 1 overall pick was displaying a defeatist attitude — frowning, tugging at his jersey and rolling his eyes after poor plays. Saunders showed Wall so many instances that eventually a fed-up Wall asked to be fined any time he does those things.

And from there, it was established that Wall would pay $50 for every time he visibly expressed his frustrations, with Wall believing that negative reactions from a team captain would cause teammates to lose focus and confidence. It might have come off as an extreme measure, but coach Flip Saunders believes that it is a sign that Wall is literally willing to pay the price to be great.

Wall noted that the fine isn't too large, but said, "It might get to be 10 times a game. Fifty times 10 — that's a lot, right? Got to watch it." (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Caps Midterm Report

At this point in the season last year, the Capitals were skating away with the Southeast Division. It was an A-plus regular season for the President's Trophy winner. Halfway through the 2010-11 campaign, Washington deserves more mixed marks.

★ Honor Roll

Carlzner: The defensive duo of John Carlson and Karl Alzner, a tandem with only 167 NHL games between them, have become the Caps' top shutdown line. Carlson is second on the Caps with an average on-ice time of 21:59 per game, and Alzner is sixth with 19:11. Not bad for two kids.

! Academic Warning

Alex Ovechkin: Sure, he leads the team with 46 points, and though his goals (16) are down, his play has helped create scores – evident with his 30 assists. Still, Ovechkin looks like a coasting student. He's turned in a B-minus performance so far, but we know he can deliver an A each night.

Offense

SUMMARY: Secondary scoring is great, but if this Capitals team wants to get back to the way it was — you know, scoring five goals a game and sending 18,000 fans home with free buffalo wings — it starts with No. 8 and the rest of the “young guns.”

C The once dominant, free-wheeling Capitals offense is just a middle-of-the-pack squad today. The Caps rank 14th in goals with 133, and recent slumps by star players haven't helped the cause. The team's offensive weapons (Alex Ovechkin, Alex Semin, Nicklas Backstrom, Mike Knuble, Brooks Laich, Mike Green) have combined for only 18 goals in the last 21 games. On top of that, the power play is 18th in the league with a 18.1 percent success rate. But it's not all gloom and doom. While the Caps may want to see the likes of Ovechkin and Backstrom lighting the lamp more often, the secondary scorers have been able to chip in. Of the 11 double-digit point scorers on the team, four are not considered top-six forwards (Eric Fehr, Jason Chimera, Matt Hendricks, Marcus Johansson), and one is a rookie defender (John Carlson).

Defense

SUMMARY: Simply put, the Caps are playing the type of defense they need to win in the playoffs.

B Once considered the team's major weakness, the defense has actually been a bright spot for the Caps. Despite seemingly constant injury problems on the blue line, Washington currently ranks ninth in goals against per game with 2.57 and are 11th in goals allowed with 121. But perhaps the biggest improvement is on the team's penalty kill, for which coach Bruce Boudreau has established a more aggressive scheme. Now, the Caps rank sixth with a man down with an 85 percent kill rate. The team also saw an addition to the D-corps in December when General Manager George McPhee traded Tomas Fleischmann to Colorado for Scott Hannan. Hannan arrived in D.C. at the start of the infamous eight-game losing streak, but since Dec. 19, he's been a plus-4 player. He's also been credited with helping turn Mike Green into a better defender, which could be invaluable come playoff time.

Goaltending

SUMMARY: Could it be better? Sure, but two young goaltenders sharing the net for a team that hopes to compete for a Cup — and looking like they belong there — is more than worth an A in our book.

A When the Caps announced that Michal Neuvirth and Semyon Varlamov were going to be the team's goalies for the season, it was a lot like handing the kids the keys to the car. Not just any car, but a Ferrari. Fortunately, the 22-year-olds haven't crashed it — in fact, they've made it better. During the first month of the season, Neuvirth was considered the team's best player and was awarded the NHL's Rookie of the Month award. When Varlamov returned from injury shortly thereafter, the two began their sharing of the team's No. 1 goalie role.

In his second full season, Varlamov is fifth in goals against with a 2.22 average, while Neuvirth is 19th with 2.55. Varlamov's save percentage (.924) is seventh in the NHL, even after he allowed seven goals against the New York Rangers on Dec. 12. Neuvirth finds himself in 28th for save percentage with .911, but that doesn't mean he's a bad goalie. The company that shares the bottom of the category includes former Montreal Canadien Jaroslav Halak (29th), now with St. Louis, and San Jose Shark Antti Niemi (30th), who helped guide the Chicago Blackhawks to a Stanley Cup last season.

THE BOTTOM LINE: The losing streaks, slumps and frustrating losses might be mounting, but keeping it all in perspective, the Capitals are still a playoff team. Washington sits just one point behind the division leader, Tampa Bay, and should the team claim its division, it will likely have the second-place seed in the Eastern Conference playoff bracket. The past 47 games haven't always been pretty, but as the Caps learned last season, a dominating regular season doesn't always mean much when the puck drops in the playoffs. REED S. ALBERS

KOTO BOLOFO

Koto Bolofo

PHOTOGRAPHER, HERMES INSIDER

If Hermes is the holy grail of luxury retail, Koto Bolofo is its chosen keeper. A brief meeting between the photog and Jean-Louis Dumas, the late chief executive of the French fashion house, spurred Bolofo's four-year visual journey through the Parisian atelier. From Birkin bags to Parisian silk scarves, the 11-volume "La Maison" ($125, Steidl) captures the mystique of the iconic brand.

How long have you been photographing Hermes?

For the last 16 years. I started working on Le Monde d'Hermes, their in-house magazine.

Why did you want to chronicle the House of Hermes?

I was kind of fed up with the Le Monde d'Hermes. It was always the same finished product. I put my neck on the line and made an appointment with Jean-Louis Dumas about eight years ago. I explained my feelings to him.

Why were you allowed to photograph the secrets of Hermes?

During the appointment, he stopped me and asked, "Koto, where do you come from?" I told him South Africa, and he asked, "What part?" I'm thinking, he's on a tangent and about to ask me to see myself to the door. I told him Lesotho, and he said, "You must be the Basuto tribe," and he pronounced it so well. It turned out that his great-great-grandfather was a missionary in Lesotho, and when the Zulu tribe would attack him, the Basuto would protect him. He said, "That makes you a cousin of mine!"

So, you were welcomed into the Hermes family?

He called all his delegates into his office and said, "I want to introduce you to my cousin, Koto Bolofo. He's the only one who can call me Jean-Louis. He wants to photograph the secret behind Hermes. I give him carte blanche!" It was comical, but he had such a vision, too.

"Like a fly on the wall, I was photographing how to make a bag, how to compose perfume."

And what was the vision?

Well, you can guard a secret, and it becomes banal. Dumas allowed me to photograph the workshops, the entire establishment of Hermes in secret. So, like a fly on the wall, I was photographing how to make a Kelly bag, how to compose perfume and even the gardener. Everything.

What does the book convey?

The raw luxury in Hermes. We use the word "luxury" very flippantly these days. I wanted to show what it's really like to see the stitching of a Kelly bag. To see the fabrication of leather, the analysis of detail.

Was there anything you learned about Hermes that was really surprising?

The specialties department. They make anything custom to order. For example, a guy came in from Africa who had just shot a crocodile. He came in with the skin and it reeked, but he wanted his bag made out of the crocodile that he shot. They made a tiny teddy bear for Brigitte Bardot and a bridle made of platinum for a sheik. It's sort of wacky.

And, if you do not have the loved one, what better place to find the temporary loved one than Roma, where every handsome Silvio, Leonardo and Tony stands ready to put you on the back of his Vespa and speed you around the Colosseum as if you were the 17-year-old exchange student who has slipped her chaperones?

Heritage Goes Hip

Not too long ago, a guy in L.L. Bean duck boots would channel unwanted “Preppy Handbook” flashbacks. And plaid flannel shirts earned you no fashion cred, either — unless it was Halloween, and you were going as Kurt Cobain.

But in the past season or two, menswear designers have been experiencing a sartorial whiplash of sorts, plundering the trad past (hunting boots, madras ties) to create a rad-yet-wearable future. This means long-standing brands — Pendleton, L.L. Bean, Levi’s — have launched hipper, slimmer-cut collections (see Bean’s Heritage line or Levi’s collaboration with Opening Ceremony) and newer labels (J. Crew, Alabama-cool Billy Reid) are turning out classics with a twist.

“I think heritage is a cross of Anglo and Southern. Men like these styles because they want things that are good quality and well-crafted,” says Paul Tribble, co-founder of Richmond, Va.-based

Country Clubby: A plaid shirt ($49, Tommy, 3229 M St. NW; 202-333-9311), khakis ($98, Sherman Pickey, 1647 Wisconsin Ave. NW; 202-333-4212) and Billy Reid boots ($425, Billyreid.com) get warmed up with a Lands’ End Canvas puffer vest and khaki jacket ($70 and $100, Canvas.landsend.com).

Prep Cool: For a cheeky spin on boarding-school looks, pair a windowpane check hat ($49, Shoefly, 2727 Wilson Blvd., Arlington; 703-243-6490), bow tie ($65, Sherman Pickey) and Lands’ End Canvas boots ($100, Canvas.landsend.com) with Tommy’s belt, glasses-print button-down, cardigan and jeans ($59, $59, $79 and $79).

Ledbury (Ledbury.com), which stitches up classic button-downs in slightly edgy patterns with a trimmer fit than Grandad’s.

Alabama-based Billy Reid, who will open a store in Georgetown this spring, uses old-school materials — Harris tweeds, waxed cotton — as he tweaks traditional ideas, say, running up a hunting shirt (with pockets for ammo or iPod buds, naturally) in Johnny Cash-esque black or rendering a wing tip in weathered leather, not slick cordovan. “It’s about looking back to move forward,” Reid says. “You see an old field jacket and ask, ‘Why was it made that way? How can we make it relevant today?’”

You’ll find these “Mad Men”-meets-Brawny Man styles not only at old-timey outfitters (see: Lands’ End Canvas, Brooks Bros. Black Sheep) but also at Reid’s website, at J. Crew (which collaborates with heritage brands such as Quoddy moccasins and Timex watches) and even at preppy revivalist joints such as Tommy Hilfiger’s Tommy stores. Whether you choose to wear them to survey the family farm or the latest bars in the Atlas District remains up to you.

And remember, many of these pieces — from tassled loafers to Nordic sweaters — boast that rarest of qualities in fashion: staying power. “Heritage is really about being a grown-up, and I don’t think the trend is going away,” says D.C. style blogger Walker Lemond (Rulesformyunbornson.tumblr.com). “I’m sure there are old guys in Georgetown rocking this look, and they don’t even know it!”

INDEPENDENT ARTISTS FILM PRODUCTION

Quality Tearjerker

I see movies in previews one of three ways: at a press screening in a theater, on a DVD in my living room or, in my least favorite way, on a DVD in my office. When I'm really crunched for time, I turn out the lights and watch films on my Mac as the rest of the newsroom bustles by. It's not my preferred way, but it works. Until I, you know, start crying.

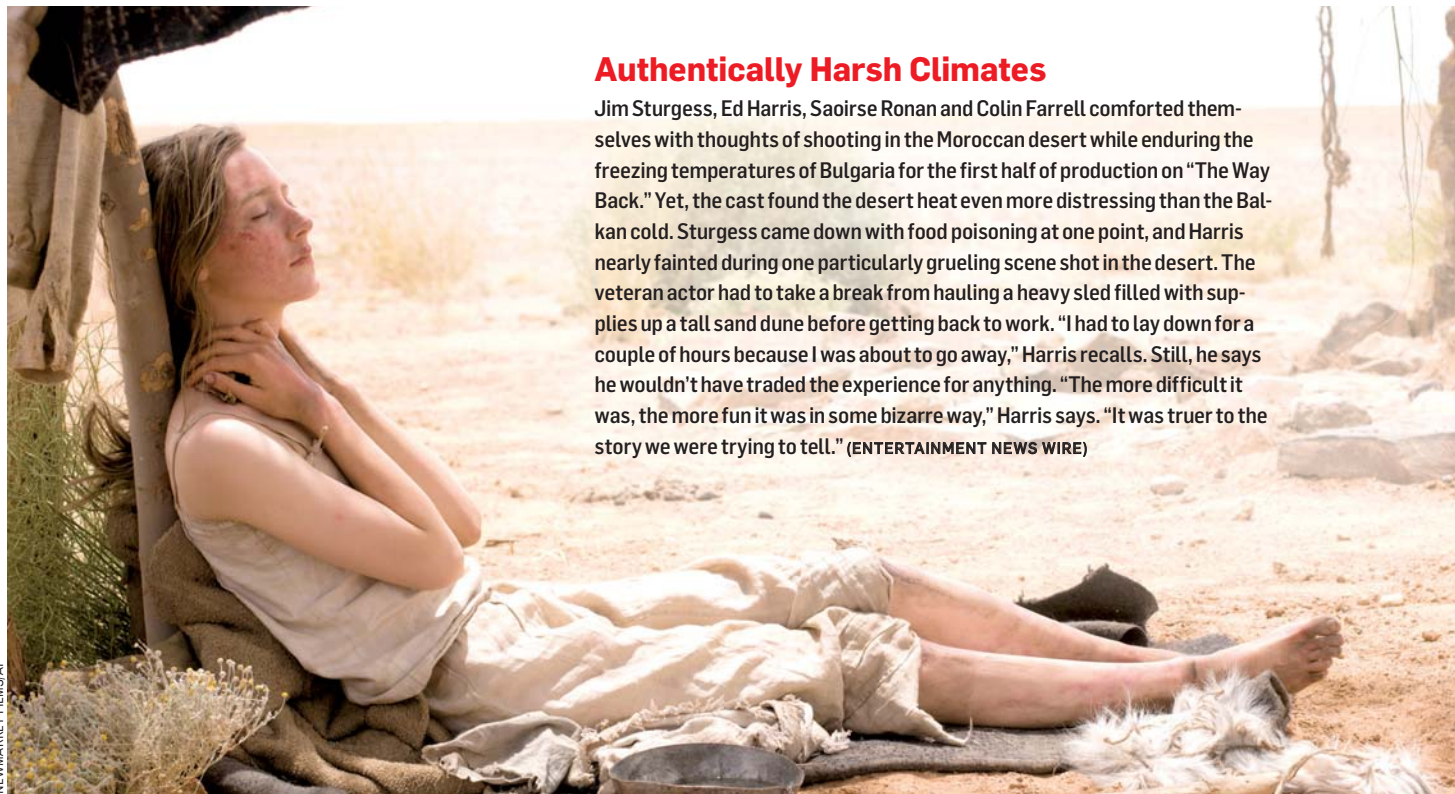

By Kristen Page-Kirby

I'm not a big crier at movies, but the German film "When We Leave" (which shows tonight at the Goethe-Institut's Film Neu festival and opens in D.C. on Feb. 18) proves that no one does bleak the way the Germans do bleak. The story of a Berlin-born Turkish woman attempting to escape an abusive marriage flattened me so badly I had to eat large amounts of Thai food to feel better.

Why watch movies that are heart-breaking? Particularly at work, when you'll have to hit the water fountain with red eyes and a desire to walk in front of a bus? In the case of "When We Leave," it's because the story isn't just a barrage of sadness — largely due to the lead performance of Sibel Kekilli, above, but also because the darkness has elements of light in it. A depressing movie that leaves you bummed doesn't contribute much, but a film that leaves a space amid all the this-world-sucks-where's-the-vodka vibe to believe that it can get better, maybe, is exactly what makes "When We Leave" worth seeing.

Saoirse Ronan copes with intense desert heat after joining a band of escaped Soviet gulag prisoners traveling by foot from Siberia to India in the drama "The Way Back."

Authentically Harsh Climates

Jim Sturgess, Ed Harris, Saoirse Ronan and Colin Farrell comforted themselves with thoughts of shooting in the Moroccan desert while enduring the freezing temperatures of Bulgaria for the first half of production on "The Way Back." Yet, the cast found the desert heat even more distressing than the Balkan cold. Sturgess came down with food poisoning at one point, and Harris nearly fainted during one particularly grueling scene shot in the desert. The veteran actor had to take a break from hauling a heavy sled filled with supplies up a tall sand dune before getting back to work. "I had to lay down for a couple of hours because I was about to go away," Harris recalls. Still, he says he wouldn't have traded the experience for anything. "The more difficult it was, the more fun it was in some bizarre way," Harris says. "It was truer to the story we were trying to tell." (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

Improbably Compelling

Desperate prisoners flee a Soviet gulag to India in a supposedly true tale of survival

Film Review

"It's not our guns or wire or dogs that form your prison. Siberia is your prison," a Soviet official proclaims to a miserable collection of prisoners new to the gulag, in Peter Weir's historically dubious but dramatically compelling story of escape and endurance, "The Way Back." The official points at the windswept, snowy forests that surround the camp. "Nature is your jailer," he continues, "and she is without mercy."

But in 1940, one of those prisoners, Janusz (Jim Sturgess), leads an improbable escape from the remote prison, 4,000 miles on foot from Siberia to India. How improbable? You'd never believe it if it weren't for the movie's assurances that it's based on a true story. And since

NEWMARKET FILMS/AP

The Way Back (PG-13)

► Director: Peter Weir

► Stars: Jim Sturgess, Colin Farrell, Ed Harris, Saoirse Ronan, Dragos Bucur, Alexandru Potocean

► In a Nutshell: Escaped gulag prisoners trek from Siberia to India in a tale based on a discredited memoir.

► For Fans of: "Master and Commander" "127 Hours"

those assurances are suspect — at best, "The Way Back" is based on Slavomir Rawicz's discredited memoir "The Long Walk" — it may be just a little too improbable. Weir's movie is superbly made, but its fancy-dancing around history gives a hint of inauthenticity to a film that otherwise thrives on its reverence for historical detail.

Janusz and his fellow prisoners must endure the cold, as nights in the Siberian steppes can reach 40 degrees below zero. Then there's the unrelenting thirst of the Gobi Desert.

Not all the escapees will reach their destination. (That's no spoiler; an opening caption says as much.) But in their long and difficult journey through taiga and sand, over mountains and under the Great Wall, they all achieve a certain heroic stature. Even if they must die, as Janusz points out before the trek begins, at least they'll die free.

Standouts in the international cast include Colin Farrell as a Russian criminal with a big knife, and exceptional Romanian actor Dragos Bucur as an accountant with a quick wit. Saoirse Ronan plays Irena Yelena, a Polish orphan who joins the trek along the way.

Best of all is Ed Harris, playing a reserved American engineer, and not just because Weir can explore the weathered crags of his face as if they were the valleys of the Gobi Desert. DAN KOIS (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Nick Stahl can't figure out why his pal is full of rage in the NoVa-set "Kalamity."

Shadows In Our Suburbs

Film Review

Northern Virginia is sometimes considered annoying, especially at rush hour, but it's rarely seen as ominous. Writer-director James M. Hausler, a Fairfax, Va., native, aims to change that perception with "Kalamity," a dour tale of disappearance and possible murder in the NoVa 'burbs.

Locals may be the ideal viewers for "Kalamity," since they're likely to be tickled by seeing such clean, well-lighted places as Dulles International Airport used as locations in a shadowy thriller. Alas, this incongruity is the movie's most entertaining aspect.

Billy (Nick Stahl) and Stan (Jonathan Jackson) are longtime pals who are both dealing with girlfriend problems. Billy has just broken up with Alice (Beau Garrett), and Stan is still hurting from his earlier split with Ashley (Alona Tal).

But the guys can't really discuss their heartache, because every time Billy mentions Ashley, Stan gets upset. You might even say he flies into a homicidal rage, which is relevant information, since Ashley has been reported missing. Billy is slow to conclude that Stan has lost it, but then he doesn't see everything we do. MARK JENKINS (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Occupational Anxieties

Three men cope with corporate downsizing in the painfully realistic 'The Company Men'

Film Review

With the unemployment rate stubbornly dwelling around the double digits, the story of "The Company Men" will no doubt hit close to American homes: A massive corporation responds to flagging profits and shareholder anxiety with layoffs. But writer-director John Wells uses the timely scenario to dive into the details with a trio of character studies, chronicling how the pressures of downsizing affect three men and their families.

Much like last year's "Up in the Air," this tale smacks viewers with a reality that's hard to imagine paying money to see in a theater. And yet, here we are.

The first casualty is Bobby Walk-

Kevin Costner, left, and Ben Affleck settle into an uneasy working relationship.

The Company Men (R)

- Director: John Wells
- Stars: Ben Affleck, Chris Cooper, Tommy Lee Jones, Kevin Costner, Suzanne Rico, Thomas Kee
- In a Nutshell: Three men at different stages of life and their families try to survive a round of corporate downsizing.

er (Ben Affleck), a father of two, who gets his pink slip alongside a handful of other employees. This initial round of cuts torments Phil Woodward (Chris Cooper), who's nearing retirement age and seems convinced he's next to go, and infuriates Gene McClary (Tommy Lee Jones).

Bobby initially seems like the least sympathetic of the three. He's obsessed with appearances. He also declares himself above con-

Worth Becoming 'Attached'

Natalie Portman elevates the typical rom-com with a twist

Film Review

In "No Strings Attached," Natalie Portman and Ashton Kutcher — or rather, the impossibly attractive Los Angelenos they play in this better-than-average romantic comedy — believe they can have sex constantly while remaining unattached and on perfectly amicable terms.

Don't they know this can't be done? Elaine and Jerry from "Seinfeld" tried this and couldn't pull it off. What makes Emma (Portman) and Adam (Kutcher) so special?

Truthfully, nothing. Anyone with even vague knowledge of romantic comedy clichés knows how this contemporary twist on the Harry-sleeps-with-Sally routine will conclude. Yet, thanks to the immense likability of the movie's stars, "No Strings Attached" is an entertaining look at two people giving their relationship the ol' hooking-up-like-they're-in-college try.

Ashton Kutcher adds both nutritional and sexual boosts to Natalie Portman's life.

After meeting on at least four occasions, Adam and Emma finally let their relationship get physical. In a twist on typical gender roles, Emma suggests their arrangement remain all coitus, no commitment.

Affleck nails his role, continuing his ascent from near cinematic oblivion.

struction work to his brother-in-law (Kevin Costner), who works in construction.

And yet, watching Bobby go through the steps — denial, anger, self-loathing, acceptance — feels as authentic as it is compelling. Affleck nails the role, continuing his ascent from near cinematic oblivion.

James Salinger (Craig T. Nelson) is one of the movie's weak spots: a caricature of an evil CEO, taking home a boatload of money while unloading employees left and right.

Otherwise, the film feels painfully real. In other words, maybe it is worth spending money to see this reality after all. STEPHANIE MERRY (THE WASHINGTON POST)

No Strings Attached (R)

- Director: Ivan Reitman
- Stars: Natalie Portman, Ashton Kutcher, Kevin Kline, Mindy Kaling
- In a Nutshell: Friends Emma and Adam try to keep their relationship strictly physical.
- For Fans of: "When Harry Met Sally," "Love Actually," "Notting Hill"

That's right, it's the woman, not the man, who refuses to hold hands in public. But as soon as Adam hands Emma a post-tryst balloon, it's clear he's already in l-o-v-e.

And we can see why. With a lesser actress playing Emma, "No Strings Attached" could have been yet another subpar rom-com. But Portman sells the material. JEN CHANEY (THE WASHINGTON POST)

FRIDAY

When Eden (1716 I St. NW; 202-785-0270) opened its rooftop deck last summer, the "Garden of Eden" was an immediate hit. That was just the first step in the rebirth of the old Eyebar space; the next will be unveiled this weekend. The first-floor GREEN ROOM keeps the outdoor feel, thanks to bamboo plants and a waterfall that stretches behind the bar. Seats resemble park benches, and the tables are basically bundles of logs with a clear glass top. But what will garner the most interest are the enormous interactive video screens that dominate one wall and the top of the bar. If you walk by when it's showing a field of grass and flowers, an infrared machine detects your movement and causes the plants to rustle in a breeze. If the screens imbedded in the bar top are showing a koi pond, setting your glass down causes CGI fish to scatter. Very cool and kitschy, and an easy conversation starter. But if you think the place is all bells and whistles, a solid lineup of house DJs (including CARLOS MELANGE AND TRAYZE on Friday and JOSE AND VICIOUS on Saturday) should ease any fears.

SATURDAY

Saturday is a day that's been a long time coming for those who pay attention to the local rock scene. That's when U.S. ROYALTY will celebrate the release of its debut album,

"Mirrors." Ever since the band emerged seemingly fully formed a few years ago, the quartet immediately attained status as D.C.'s act most likely to become the next big thing, thanks to its polished sound and fashionable looks. The latter part of that equation has become the band's calling card of late, even earning the band a best dressed nod from Esquire at October's CMJ music festival in New York. But now the focus can be turned back to the music, a distinctly American brand of rock 'n' roll with serious crossover potential (Rock & Roll Hotel, 1353 H St. NE; 8:30 p.m., $12; 202-388-7625).

Other concert options: Swedish electro-soul-pop band LITTLE DRAGON at Black Cat (1811 14th St. NW; 9 p.m., $18, $15 in advance; 202-667-4490); and the DISMEMBERMENT PLAN at the 9:30 Club (1811 14th St. NW; 9 p.m., sold out; 202-667-4490).

ALAMAR (NR, 73 minutes) It's a cliché that the best movies take you on a journey, but that's precisely what happens in "Alamar" ("To the Sea"), Pedro Gonzalez-Rubio's transporting part-documentary, part-fictional tale of a young boy spending an enchanted summer with his own wild child of a father. As the film opens, an Italian woman named Roberta explains how she fell in love with and eventually separated from Jorge, with whom she had a son, Natan. But before they go, Jorge wants to take Natan to the Banco Chinchorro, the pristine coral reef in the Mexican Caribbean where he lives and fishes. A.H.

and ragged ends of real life. The results can be almost unbearably harrowing but also deeply cathartic, as viewers create their own meanings within Dean (Ryan Gosling) and Cindy's (Michelle Williams) singular downward spiral. A.H.

COUNTRY STRONG (PG-13, 112 minutes) See Gwyneth Paltrow start sobbing onstage in the middle of a song. See Gwyneth Paltrow have another emotional breakdown in a bathroom stall. That may be a gross oversimplification of what happens in "Country Strong," the story of a Nashville diva (Paltrow) attempting to relaunch her career after rehab. But it's an accurate description of how it feels to watch this disjointed drama. Paltrow, under-served by the material at almost every turn, pours every drop of twang and tears she has into the role of Kelly Canter, a country star whose drinking has led to a rupture in her marriage to manager James (Tim McGraw). JEN CHANEY

THE DILEMMA (PG-13, 118 minutes) Although the Judd Apatow brigade appears to have cornered the market on the bromance genre, Jonah Hill was a mere middle-schooler when Vince Vaughn proves he still has the bravado that makes him so watchable, neither his quick wit nor his chemistry with Kevin James can transform "The Dilemma" into the gold standard of buddy comedies. The titular conundrum arises when Ronny Valentine (Vaughn) discovers his best friend's wife, Geneva (Winona Ryder), canoodling with Zip, played by Channing Tatum. What's Ronny to do: tell his friend Nick or keep mum? STEPHANIE MERRY

THE FIGHTER (R, 115 minutes) In the 1970s, welterweight boxer Dicky Eklund, known as the "Pride of Lowell," made local history in that working-class Massachusetts city by sending Sugar Ray Leonard to the mat. Later, lost in a vortex of drug addiction and running petty hustles, Dicky trained his half-brother Micky Ward, eventually to a world welterweight championship. The title character of "The Fighter" might be Micky—played here in a straight-up, stalwart, hugely sympathetic performance by Mark Wahlberg. But it could just as easily pertain to the hardscrabble Dicky, especially as he's channeled by Christian Bale. A.H.

GREEN HORNET (PG-13, 108 minutes) There was a time when movies about superheroes were dark and full of angst. The Green Hornet (Seth Rogen) has changed all that. Rogen plays a superhero who's a jokester. His father, played by Tom Wilkinson, dies, and Britt (Rogen's alter ego) inherits his mansion, his garage full of luxury cars, and the newspaper he edited for years. Rogen and Jay Chou, who plays Britt's partner, Kato, have real chemistry. In fact, Kato's often the best part of the movie. DAN KOIS

GULLIVER'S TRAVELS (PG, 85 minutes) Imagine a contemporary update of "Gulliver's Travels" in which the titular hero—an unambitious pop-culture addict played by Jack Black—finds himself in a Lilliput whose pinkie-size denizens are only too willing to place themselves at his beck and call. In this unfunny reimaging of the classic satire by Jonathan Swift, Lemuel Gulliver (Black) finds himself on the aforementioned island while re-searching the Bermuda Triangle. After extinguishing a raging fire by urinating on it, he's quickly declared a hero. Then, "Gulliver's Travels" turns to the tried-and-true story line of loser-guy-gets-hot-girl. M.O.

HOW DO YOU KNOW (PG-13, 116 minutes) With "How Do You Know," writer-director James L. Brooks presents viewers with yet another edgy, self-conscious heroine. Here, that's Lisa (Reese Witherspoon), a professional softball player who, as the movie opens, is in the process of getting cut from her team. On second thought, Lisa really isn't the typical Brooks heroine here; that title belongs to George (Paul Rudd), a financial executive who, as Lisa is getting axed, finds out he's being indicted for securities fraud. While George convinces himself he has fallen in love with Lisa, she pursues a romance with baseball star Matty (Owen Wilson). A.H.

THE KING'S SPEECH (R, 118 minutes)

There's nothing not to love about Tom Hooper's classy historical drama, which tells the story of how Britain's King George VI (Colin Firth) overcame a debilitating stutter and went on to lead the country through World War II. Although Bertie, as he was known to his family, had no intention of assuming the throne, he found himself wearing the crown when his brother, King Edward VIII (Guy Pearce), abdicated. Painfully shy and reticent to the point of paralysis, Bertie freezes up every time he approaches a microphone. It's a situation that Bertie's wife, Elizabeth (Helena Bonham Carter), realizes just won't do. A.H.

LITTLE FOCKERS (PG-13, 98 minutes) How bad is the third installment of the "Meet the Parents" franchise? So bad it makes the perfectly ordinary "Meet the Fockers" look Oscar worthy. The reservoir Ben Stiller and Robert De Niro previously dipped into when hoping to replenish their 10-year-old franchise has run dry. What remains are awkward rectal-exam jokes and random celebrity cameos meant to distract from the sitcom-level scripting. That's right, Gaylord Focker (Stiller) still can't catch a break with his skeptical father-in-law, Jack Byrnes (De Niro), despite the fact that Gay — ahem, Greg — has been married to Pam Focker (Teri Polo) for nearly a decade now and has helped raise bratty twins. SEAN O'CONNELL

I LOVE YOU PHILLIP MORRIS (R, 98 minutes) Jim Carrey plays Steven Russell, a married, churchgoing good ol' boy who, after a near-fatal car accident, comes out of the closet as a gay man, turning to brazen scams to support his newly fabulous lifestyle. After he's caught and sent to prison, he meets and falls in love with fellow convict Phillip Morris (Ewan McGregor). Though it all sounds like a recipe for disaster, the movie is actually surprisingly sweet. Yes, there is a real Phillip Morris (no relation to the tobacco company). There's also a real Steven Russell. He's currently serving a 144-year sentence in a Texas penitentiary. M.O.

RABBITHOLE (PG-13, 92 minutes) How do you recover from the death of a child? The movie "Rabbit Hole" eloquently posits the only correct answer to that question: You don't. "Rabbit Hole" focuses on a grieving couple eight months after their young son was killed by a car while chasing his dog into the street. In Nicole Kidman and Aaron Eckhart, director John Cameron Mitchell has found actors who gracefully pull off that psychological high-wire act as Becca and Howie, a couple who have reached the point in their mourning where most of their friends and neighbors think it's time to be moving on. A.H.

SOMEWHERE (R, 98 minutes) Sofia Coppola turns her observant, forgiving eye to Hollywood stardom. The opening shot serves both as tone-setter and leitmotif, as a sports car goes around and around a dusty track. The driver is Johnny Marco (Stephen Dorff), an actor who has little else to do but drive, take calls from his publicist and pay pole dancers to provide private entertainment. The only interruption to Johnny's pursuits arrives by way of his 11-year-old daughter, Cleo (Elle Fanning), who visits him on weekends. Johnny gets more than he bargained for when Cleo's mother announces he'll have to keep her longer than a few days. A.H.

TRUE GRIT (PG-13, 109 minutes) Writer-directors Joel and Ethan Coen remake the 1969 western that earned John Wayne his only Oscar. Hailee Steinfeld makes an uncommonly assured debut as the invincible Mattie Ross, whose father has been shot by a man named Tom Chaney (Josh Brolin). Mattie arrives in Fort Smith, Ark., to claim her father's body, acquire cash by way of some canny horse-trading and avenge her father's death by hunting Chaney down and seeing him hang. She enlists U.S. Marshal Rooster Cogburn (Jeff Bridges) to go into Indian territory and bring in Chaney. A.H.

YOGI BEAR (PG, 80 minutes) Eric Brevig's Yogi is a computer-animated brown bear who walks on his hind legs and speaks with the voice of Dan Aykroyd. Yogi's pint-size life partner, Boo Boo, is voiced by Justin Timberlake. Mostly, Timberlake's mush-mouthed Boo Boo just plays the nervous scold to Yogi's free spirit. The film's plot has Yogi and Boo Boo helping Ranger Smith (Tom Cavanagh) defend Jellystone from a rapacious mayor (Andrew Daly), who wants to sell off the park's logging rights to bail out the city budget. D.K.

Unfair & Unbalanced

'Onion News' skewers the world of nonstop cable broadcasting

Satire

IFC 10:00 Fans of fake news should not miss the pitch-perfect parody "Onion News Network," which debuts Friday. A send-up of the loud, vacant and self-absorbed content of most cable news and much local news, ONN "stars" Suzanne Sena as the vain, aggressive and brittle host Brooke Alvarez, a woman who inserts herself into every story. I really can't say enough about her performance. Everything from her hair and makeup, outfits and body language is spot on. She deserves some kind of award. And, believe me: Brooke Alvarez is out to win it!

One of the reasons Sena's "Brooke" seems so natural is that Sena has appeared on Fox News, E!, a Dallas CBS affiliate and on "Extra" as a weekend anchor. She knows the world she lampoons.

Other "Onion" features include clips from their sister morning show "Today Now!" the celebrity-obsessed "Star Fix" and "Cross Examination With Shelby Cross" a Nancy Grace-like former prose-curator who seems certain that the accused are always guilty.

If, like many viewers, you've long since determined that cable news is one sad joke, at least the "Onion News Network" may provide some laughs. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURES SYNDICATE)

Best Bets

FRI 9:00

SAT 9:30

An Idiot Abroad (SCIENCE) Ricky Gervais co-produces this new series starring Karl Pilkington, the self-styled ordinary guy given to absurd theories about life who appears on "Ricky Gervais Show" podcasts. Pilkington is on a trip to see the Seven Wonders of the World.

SUN 9:00

Masterpiece Classic: Downton Abbey (PBS) As he grows into his role as heir, Matthew sparks an intense rivalry between sisters Mary and Edith, each of whom wants to marry him.

Comedy

Character Studies

Frequently more strange than laugh-out-loud funny, "Portlandia" (10:30 p.m., Friday, IFC) is essentially as small as its subject. Comedian Fred Armisen (above left) and musician Carrie Brownstein (above right) play a wide range of characters of both genders who lead slightly delusional lives of political correctness in and around the city of Portland, Ore. They include the owners of a militantly feminist bookstore, an angry bike messenger, craftspeople and others. (UFS)

Horoscope

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Your schedule may make it impossible for you to join with others in a celebration of sorts that you have actually been eagerly anticipating.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) It's time to get back to a project that has been waiting for you long enough. You may not know where you left off; anyplace will do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You don't want to spend so much time in preparation that you don't really get down to work. Make sure you know when to start.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You cannot possibly anticipate every and all eventualities, so be prepared for a little on-the-spot improvisation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) While waiting for someone else to get with the program, you may actually be able to accomplish something that guarantees your victory.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't let anyone else hear you bad-mouth your team. Be supportive — or keep silent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) What you learn about yourself at play can be applied to the way you go about your work, too. Both are closely aligned at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The communication lines must be kept open, but that doesn't mean you must be in touch with everyone at all times. Silence can be golden.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Are you ready to see what a recent lucky streak has won for you? By day's end, you'll have reason to celebrate, but not for the reason you expect.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Progress can be made either quickly or slowly, but either is progress worth noting. Pace matters less than results at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

You may be waiting for someone to bring you something you've been waiting for, but today is not likely the day. Focus on other needs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

All signs point to a certain result that you should be able to bank on by day's end, even though it hasn't yet been realized.

Samurai Sudoku

DIFFICULT

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.
